As part of its series of programs to mark the fiftieth anniversary of the Second Vatican Council (1962-1965), the Department of Theology and Religious Studies presents a panel discussion on the first two documents the Council issued: the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy and the Decree on the Media of Social Communication. The first transformed Catholic worship by insisting that the "full and active participation by all the people is the aim to be considered before all else." The second called upon those who use media to use for them the good of society, a message that has even greater significance in the age of social media. While seemingly dealing with different topics, the two documents taken together have many important implications for society and the church today.

The panelists will be:

Dr. James Caccamo
Associate Professor of Theology, specializing in Catholic social thought and the ethics of media and technology.

Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Dailey, O.S.F.S.
Professor of Theology at DeSales University, he holds the John Cardinal Foley Chair of Homiletics and Social Communications at St. Charles Borromeo Seminary.

Dr. Gerard M. Jacobitz
Assistant Professor of Theology, specializing in sacramental theology, phenomenology and hermeneutics, and music and liturgy.
